12.556 DIPLOMATS, DIPLOMATIC IMMUNITY, AND FOREIGN NATIONALS

Information:

There are three types of diplomatic identification cards:

- Diplomatic (blue border for diplomats and their families)
- Official (green border for, embassy administrative and technical staff, embassy employees, and their families)
- Consular (red border for consular personnel)

Diplomatic I.D. cards are 3¾" x 2½" and contain a photo of the bearer. The bearer's name, title, mission, city and state, date of birth, identification number, expiration date, and a U.S. Department of State seal appears on the front of the card. A brief statement of the bearer's immunity is printed on the reverse side.

Consular identification cards, issued by a country's respective consulate, are recognized and accepted by the CPD for identification purposes.

The two most frequently used consular identification cards are Mexico's "Matricula Consular de Alta Seguridad" and Guatemala's "Tarjeta de Identificación Consular Guatemalteca." Both of these identification cards are referred to as a CID card. The CID card is identification only, and should not be confused with a Mexican driver's license.

Definitions:

Diplomatic Immunity – Full criminal immunity or limited criminal immunity which the personnel of a foreign diplomatic mission and, in varying degrees, their family members retain because they serve as representatives of a sovereign state and require special rights and guarantees for the effective functioning of the mission.

Diplomatic Agents – A term embracing heads of missions, ambassadors, and charge d'affaires, and members of their diplomatic staff. These individuals have the function of dealing directly with host country officials and retain the highest degree of privileges and immunities.

Administrative and Technical Staff – Individuals who support the activities of diplomatic agents and perform tasks critical to the inner workings of the embassy. This category includes secretaries, clerical personnel, office managers, and certain professional security personnel. These persons also retain a high level of privilege, but somewhat less than diplomatic agents.

Service Staff – Drivers, cleaners, and building/grounds personnel. They have much less in the way of immunity.

Foreign National – Any person who is not a United States citizen.

Consular Officer – A foreign national, employed at a consulate or in the consular section of an embassy, who represents their government's citizens and commercial interests. They are not diplomatic agents and do not retain the same privileges and immunities.

Consulate – The offices of a consul and consular officers located outside of Washington, D.C.

Special Bilateral Agreements – There are some foreign countries which do not fall under the aforementioned categories. The United States has bilateral agreements with these countries, which grant significantly higher privileges and immunities to all staff members of their embassy and sometimes staff family members.

U-VISA – Common name for the U Nonimmigrant Status Certification, Form I-918, Supplement B. Confirms that the petitioner has been helpful, is being helpful, or is likely to be helpful in the investigation or prosecution of the qualifying criminal activity of which they are a victim.

U Nonimmigration Status – A designation foreign nationals and their families may request through the Department of Homeland Security, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, that allows temporary immigration benefits if they have been a victim of certain qualifying criminal activity.

Purpose:

To comply with federal laws regulating diplomatic immunity through the delivery of fair and impartial police services and establish Department procedure for dealing with diplomatic immunity and foreign nationals. It is understood that dealing with diplomatic immunity poses particular problems for law enforcement officers in applying immunity if they do not understand its purposes or rules.

Promote cooperation between foreign national victims and Department personnel during the investigation and prosecution process. Knowledge and discussion about potential immigration benefits available to cooperative foreign victims, specifically the U-Visa Certification, may help to alleviate fears and increase victim cooperation.

Policy:

The Cincinnati Police Department (CPD) will comply with the federal laws and procedures regarding proper treatment of diplomats who commit or are suspected of committing crimes. When CPD officers interact with diplomats, they will communicate with the State Department as appropriate.

When dealing with individuals who possess diplomatic immunity privileges, officers will perform thorough investigations, keep good records, and report whatever appropriate to the State Department. This allows the State Department to exercise the tools it has to remove individuals from the U.S. who are engaged in criminal activity or to revoke the driving privileges from individuals who repeatedly violate the traffic code.

The Department will assist immigrant crime victims with U-Visa Certification applications if they cooperate during an official police investigation and subsequent prosecution for qualifying criminal offenses. The Community Liaison Unit Commander is authorized as the Police Chief's designated certifying official, to certify a petitioner's request for U-Visa certification. Officers are authorized to distribute to any crime victim who may be a non-citizen an informational flyer describing immigration relief and services available to immigrant crime victims.

Federal courts have consistently held that undocumented presence is not a crime but a federal civil violation enforceable only by federal officers. CPD officers will not stop, detain, question, or arrest a person solely on the basis that the individual may have unlawfully entered the country and/or exceeded their Visa. CPD officers will not enforce immigration laws. However, if Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officers request assistance from a CPD officer in detaining a subject, the officer will provide assistance with the approval of a supervisor.

Procedure:

- A. Claims of Diplomatic Immunity
  - 1. When proper I.D. is shown and status is verified, officers will fully respect the immunity. Officers will not arrest or detain persons who have diplomatic immunity except in circumstances where public safety is in imminent danger or it is apparent a serious crime may otherwise be committed. Officers may, however, initiate contact with an individual having diplomatic immunity.
  - 2. If a person claims immunity and cannot show proper I.D. during an incident that would normally require arrest or detention, or an officer believes invalid I.D. is being presented, inform the person that he/she will be held in custody until proper identity can be confirmed.

Police Officer Robert Ahlers District Two

Please accept this commendation and my appreciation for your dedication to duty in the investigation of a breaking and entering offense. Specifically:

On February 8, 2015, you responded and investigated a breaking and entering offense involving the theft of more than $20,000.00 in vehicles and landscaping equipment. The initial investigation did not identify a suspect, but officers began a search of the area in an attempt to locate the stolen vehicles or equipment.

Within the hour of the reported offense, the abandoned stolen pick-up truck was located. A neighborhood canvass was conducted and a description was gained as to a possible second pick-up truck involved as well as descriptions of possible suspects.

Officer Ahlers, you continued your search of the area looking for the second pick-up truck. Within the hour, officers observed the second pick-up with stolen property in the truck bed. Officers observed a male suspect entering an apartment building and pursued the suspect on foot. During the chase, the suspect discarded a 40 caliber Glock semi-automatic pistol as officers approached. The suspect was taken into custody without further incident. The officers recovered some of the stolen property from the pick-up truck and continued their investigation for the remaining equipment taken in the offense. The officers determined the suspect had recently been in another jurisdiction and requested that jurisdiction check an address. At that location, the majority of the stolen property was recovered. Due to officers' thorough follow-up investigation, within hours of the reported offense a suspect was charged in this offense and all but $500.00 worth of the stolen vehicles and equipment was recovered.

Officer Ahlers, you are deserving of this commendation for your investigative skills, teamwork, tenacity and commitment to assisting victims of crime.

Sincerely.

Police Officer Steven Mittermeier

During the recent Over the Rhine CIRV initiative which culminated in the autumn of 2014, and in preparation for the upcoming March launch of the Neighborhood Enhancement Program in Over the Rhine, District One officers partnered with other units and agencies to conduct intensive investigations into violence and drug trafficking in the northwest quadrant of Over the Rhine. These efforts dovetailed with the departmental response to citizen complaints into drug trafficking near 12th and Race Streets as well. District One Violent Crimes Squad Detective Steven Mittermeier was key to the Department's response to these concerns. Officer Mittermeier was the officer responsible for handling the informants and the organizing of over 40 undercover drug buys, which ultimately led to the development of probable cause to arrest the most violent and prolific offenders in Over the Rhine.

Ultimately, seven search warrants were executed. The residents of four properties were served with eviction notices. Criminal charges were signed against three business owners, place-based strategies were implemented for five locations and over 80 suspects were charged with criminal offenses.

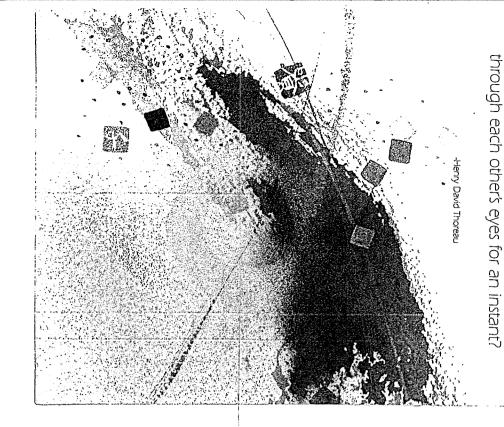

As a direct result of the CIRV initiative, Over the Rhine experienced a 12 % reduction in robberies and a 74% reduction in shooting offenses during, and immediately after the multi- month project.

Officer Mittermeier is a credit to District One and the Department.

Chief Blackwell,

On behalf of the Erlanger Kentucky Police Department, I would like to thank you and your organization for your response to an incident January 3, 2015. One of our officers accidentally shot himself in a parking garage elevator on Mercer Street.

Your officers were quick to respond, and assist in every way they could. They displayed the utmost professionalism and concern when one of our own was in need. This caring and concern was greatly appreciated by everyone involved. These officers made a very bad situation as good as it could be.

Please extend our heartfelt gratitude to Officer Howard Fox for his thorough investigation, and also to Officer Michael Adamson for staying with us through this event at the hospital even though he was going off duty.

Lastly, I want to personally thank you for responding to the hospital that evening. Officer Jouett, his family, and the Erlanger Police Department are very thankful for your personal attention that night.

Chief Jeffery Blackwell Cincinnati Police Department 310 Ezzard Charles Drive Cincinnati OH 45214

Dear Chief Blackwell,

This correspondence is to express a heartfelt THANK YOU for your leadership in our city as it regards how our police men and women serve the citizens of Cincinnati. I watched the recent news about how the new recruits are being trained to interact with all Cincinnatians from the poorest to the richest, and to treat them with the respect they deserve.

In view of the debacle in Ferguson MO and the Cleveland police department blaming the death of a 12 year old boy as being his fault, and other incidents across the nation, I can't say thank you enough for your compassionate training practices.

I am proud to say that Cincinnati is not numbered among those cities whose insensitivity and blatant racism gives a "black eye" to all police officers.

While I'm at it, I want to tell you that Lt. Princess Davis spoke to our Church Women United women at our World Community/Human Rights Day Celebration this past November. She is an inspirational speaker and everyone enjoyed her contribution to our celebration. She is a shining example of our police department's officers.

Again. THANK YOU.

Sincerely,

The featured "DADA RAFIKI" (sister-friend) for March 11, 2015 is Officer Princess Davis, Police Officer, Cincinnati Police department, Community Advocate and Citizen's on Patrol Coordinator-who oversees over 500 volunteers, serving in 31 neighborhoods. She is a frequent visitor to nursing homes and hospitals as a senior citizen advocate for the Cincinnati Police Department. Serves as a youth mentor at Job Corps and part of the "Shop with a Cop" program for underprivileged children before the start of the school year. "She enables community members to be safe, healthy, assets to the neighborhoods and most importantly leaves them feeling valued." We salute you Officer Princess Davis for being a contemporary history maker!

Chief Jeffrey Blackwell Cincinnati Police Department 310 Ezzard Charles Dr. Cincinnati, Ohio 45214

Dear Chief Blackwell,

I would like to thank your officers, including Officer Charles Kilgore, who assisted Blue Ash Police Officers in capturing Christian Overmyer on Wednesday, March 11th.

Blue Ash Police officers were attempting to stop an entered stolen vehicle and its occupants on Interstate 71 in Blue Ash. The vehicle fled from our officers and continued southbound on Interstate 71. Other officers spotted the vehicle and became involved. The vehicle was stopped on Third Street in Cincinnati and all of the occupants were taken into custody. Cincinnati Police officers, including Officer Kilgore, arrived to assist with the arrest of the suspect.

The Blue Ash supervisor, Sgt. Allison Schlie, reports that your officers responded quickly, used sound tactics and judgment, and acted very professional while assisting our officers. It was very much appreciated by our officers on the scene.

Interagency cooperation is important, and we appreciate your officers taking the initiative to get involved to see that justice was served by helping to capture this potentially dangerous individual. Please pass on our thanks to these officers.

Sincerely,

Paul W. Hartinger

Dear Mr. Louis Arnold,

Thank you for meeting with the visitors from the US Department of State International Visitor Leadership Program.

Cincinnati has a long standing tradition of leadership in citizen diplomacy. Citizen diplomacy is the concept that, in a vibrant democracy, the individual citizen has the right—even the responsibility—to help shape U.S. foreign relations, as our members phrase it, "one handshake at a time." Each year, an estimated 4,000 hours of volunteer time is donated by our local trustees, interns and community volunteers, such as you. Building constructive connections with emerging leaders of other nations through direct interaction with American citizens is the United States' best asset for improving international relations. I would like to share with you a few insights regarding this prestigious program.

- ★ U.S. Ambassadors have repeatedly ranked the IVLP first among 63 U.S. public diplomacy programs.
- More than 320 current and former Heads of State, 1,700 cabinet-level ministers, and many other distinguished world leaders in the public and private sectors developed connections to the United States through the IVLP. IVLP Alumni include: Felipe Calderón, President of Mexico; Nicolas Sarkozy, President of France; Abdullah Gul, President of Turkey; Manmohan Singh, Prime Minister of India; Julia E. Gillard, Prime Minister of Australia; and Morgan Tsvangirai, Prime Minister of Zimbabwe.
- * The IVLP is a vital investment in U.S. national security and builds enduring relationships between foreign leaders and U.S. decision makers. Firsthand exposure to U.S. citizens and democratic institutions improves understanding of the United States and is the best asset for winning "hearts and minds."
- * The IVLP helps U.S. communities generate economic opportunities and cultivate a globally literate workforce.

We greatly appreciate you volunteering with the Greater Cincinnati World Affairs Council on this citizen diplomacy program. Being sensitive to your busy schedule, I would welcome and appreciate your feedback on the day.

Sincerely,

Michelle Harpenau Executive Director

Greater Cincinnati World Affairs Council

Dear Chief Jeffery Blackwell,

My name is Kinah Willis and I am employed through Cincinnati Public Schools as a third grade teacher at Chase Elementary in Northside. Northside is a historical community that has been riddled with violence, under privileged youth and parents lacking in education. Quite a bit of our students rely on school to receive daily meals, guidance and a great education. During the school year of 2013-2014, the Ohio Department of Education established the Third Grade Guarantee which ensures that third graders are evaluated for their reading skills. If students fail to reach the requirements of this program they are either retained or placed on a rigorous reading improvement plan. State reading test such as the Ohio Achievement Assessment is an assessment that is used to determine rather or not third graders are to be promoted on to the fourth grade. Thanks to Cincinnati Police Department and their partnership with the University of Cincinnati, we now have extra adults leading the push to ensure the success for our students here at Chase.

With the Right to Read program in place, it has provided some of our most struggling students with tutors that faithfully come once a week to provide one-on-one assistance with reading comprehension. Although we have students that receive extra help through the Intervention Specialist, that assistance is primarily focused on students with Individual Education Plans (IEP). The police officers and criminal justice students that volunteer their time to help students that are struggling and need an extra push, but have no IEP. Since the tutors have started coming in the fall our OAA Pretest scores have increased. In the fall our schools average score was 44% average passing compared with the districts 49%. My students were recently given a winter pretest in which our schools score increased to 70% compared to the districts 69%. As you can see, all the extra support we have in place is indeed working towards building academic achievement with my third grade students. We are expected to give the State Ohio Achievement Assessment in April and we are predicting that the scores should be above 80%, which will possibly help us to meet a state indicator.

The Cincinnati Police Officers that volunteer here at Chase are not only helping to shape and mold our future leaders through academics, but I also strongly believe that the encounters they have will in return help change the negative image of a police officer's responsibilities. Most children and young people's first interaction with police officers have a significant impact on how they view the police thereafter. Children often first come into contact with the police in 'crisis' situations, and there tends to be a lack of opportunities for children to meet and communicate with the police in positive, non-conflict environments. Most of these encounters happen either in their communities, on TV, at school or they hear adults around them speaking negatively about officers which sparks fear instead of comfort. The Right to Read initiative allows children's first encounter with the police in a positive context.

It allows both the student and the officer the chance to learn from each other and develop healthy relationships between the two. There is a proverb that says it takes a village to raise a child, programs like Right to read help give children the exposure to different lifestyles that will hopefully shape them to become positive contributing adults in this society. I appreciate Officer Jordan along with the other officers and University of Cincinnati students for taking the time out of their schedule to tutor the third grader here at chase.

Respectfully,

Kinah Willis
